Think about the ending of the book you read. Think about how the conflict was resolved, and what some of the characters might do next. Think about any questions that you thought the author should have answered.

Now you get to write the next chapter of the book you read – what happened next to the characters? Make sure that your next chapter makes sense – it should be consistent with the way the characters acted throughout the book. Your next chapter should be no longer than the lines below, and you should fill most if not all of the lines.
